

PHP

Check whether an array key is undefined:

```
if (isset($array['age']))
```

- + Fast and does not trigger warnings.

- Returns false for keys that exist but contain null.

```
if (array_key_exists('age', $array))
```

- + Pros: Detects even null values.

- Slightly slower than `isset()`.

```
$age = $array['age'] ?? 'Unknown'; // If 'age' is undefined, use 'Unknown'
```

- + The cleanest way to provide default values.

- Requires PHP 7+.

Unique solution ID: #1152

Author: n/a

Last update: 2025-04-03 13:14